DECISION

Mrs. i as the owner of the Town of Walkerton. The property was listed for sale at $132,900 and after 65 days on the market sold for $130,000 on September 6, 2001.

The issue before me is whether the water crisis, which occurred in May 2000, had a negative effect on the market value of the subject property.

Residential homes in Walkerton valued at over $100,000 are considered to be in the top range. For this reason, there are few comparable sales.

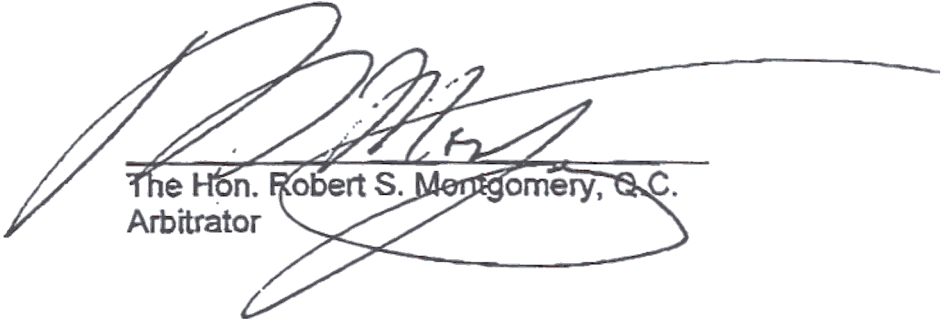

The onus of proof lies upon the claimant.

There are two bodies of expert opinion. Professor John Livernois did a paper for the inquiry. Mr. Douglas Farmer, an appraiser and a member of the Appraisal Institute of Canada, testified in person. It was Mr. Farmer's opinion that 16 months after the crisis, which was the date of the subject sale, there was no diminution in value because of the crisis. Mr. Farmer stated that real estate prices had declined in Walkerton in 1999. This was due to the general economics in the area and the closing of the poultry plant in particular. That was not addressed in Professor Livernois' report.

I accept the opinion of Mr. Farmer that there was no diminution in value.
prefer his detailed and specific reasoning to that of Professor Liversols.

conclude that there was no diminution in value and I must regrettably reject the claim.

Dated at Toronto, this 4th day of November 2004.
